

Faculty-led Study Abroad Program Cancellation Policy

UA Study Abroad reserves the right to cancel programs at any time. Programs that fail to meet a minimum enrollment level of 12 students will be cancelled. If a program is not operational and/or sustainable after two successive attempts, the program may be cancelled permanently or could be run as a departmentally managed program. If a UA Study Abroad-administered program is cancelled, notification to students will come directly from UA Study Abroad. Programs that do not meet minimum enrollment by the application and/or commitment deadline will be cancelled unless budget reductions can be made without impacting the overall quality of the program (i.e. the students still receive what they were promised) or the department wishes to subsidize the program. These reductions are only allowed if no less than 10 students have applied to the program by the application deadline.

All program cancellation decisions due to low enrollment will be made within 2 weeks after the student commitment deadline.
